Susan Gilbert, CNMT

It is again time to acknowledge all the people who have contributed to the production of the Journal of Nuclear Medicine Technology. As staffing levels throughout medicine continue to fall and individual workloads increase, more than one person has asked me over the past year how I am able to work at the hospital and still find time to edit the journal. Two individuals have become indispensable to me, Dawn Murphy as executive editor and Cathy Frizzelle-Smith as my office assistant. We work together on JNMT weekly, and sometimes daily, to create the best journal we can. In addition, I appreciate the support of my hospital coworkers: Beth Keeth, Kathryn Morton, Deborah Hiedeman, Jerry Glowniak, Michael Moody and many more. Thank you all.

Reviewing manuscripts is time consuming and I am forever grateful to the reviewers, as well as the authors, for improving the quality of our journal. There will be a few new faces on the editorial board next year as Jeffrey Dovyak and Anthony Benedetto complete their service. I wish you both well in your future endeavors and thank you for your years of service to JNMT. The following individuals gave freely of their time and talents to review manuscripts for scientific content and style.

Groups and individuals who support the journal on a recurring basis are:

Technologist Section Publications
Committee

Technologist Section Continuing
Education Committee

SNM Advertising Subcommittee

SNM Professional Services
Department

Cadmus Journal Services

Nuclear Medicine Technology
Certification Board

Joint Review Committee on Educational Programs in Nuclear Medicine Technology

Sharon Surrel, CNMT and the American College of Nuclear Physicians

Thank you. In addition to the authors, it takes every one of the above individuals and groups to produce JNMT for the membership of the Technologist Section. We hope you read and enjoy at least part of each issue. We are looking forward to serving you during 1997, the 25th anniversary of the Journal of Nuclear Medicine Technology.
